Description
Kent State University is one of six institutions in Ohio to offer the Master of Liberal Studies (MLS) degree, but the only one that allows a student to take courses from several different colleges or schools in the university. The KSU Master’s Degree in Liberal Studies therefore provides students with a unique opportunity to study at the graduate level in fields that are of interest and use to them. KSU Master of Liberal Studies students, under the guidance of the Program Director, select courses from across the university to form their own individualized and integrated program of study. Please visit the program’s page for more information on Program Requirements.

FULLY OFFERED AT:
• Online
• Kent Campus

• Candidates for the L.S.M. degree must complete a minimum 33 credit hours of graduate work. 15 credit hours (which include AS 61000, AS 61001 and AS 61098) must be at the 60000-level. It should be understood that some graduate courses may require prerequisites.

• Students take 27 credit hours of electives, of which 12 to 15 credit hours are to be in a single department and 12 to 15 credit hours are to be spread across two or three other departments. Courses may be taken in any college or school in the university; however, since the L.S.M. degree focuses on the values of liberal arts education, the program of study must include at least 12 credit hours of coursework in the College of Arts and Sciences.

• In addition to standard classroom courses, up to 6 credit hours of internship/practicum and 6 credit hours of research may be selected.

• Students will complete a program of study document in which they will develop a theme (title) and choose coursework in the major and minor areas. In developing programs of study, Liberal Studies students must adhere to several fundamental principles:
  • The program of study must emphasize interdisciplinary perspectives to learning
  • The program of study must be integrated
