Description
The Ph.D degree in Cultural Foundations explores education through a range of disciplinary and interdisciplinary perspectives: philosophy of education, history of education, sociology of education, comparative/international education, anthropology of education, gender studies, multicultural studies and religious studies. Our courses examine the social contexts of education, with particular emphasis on critical questions concerning structural inequalities and considerations of access to education, distribution of educational opportunity and successful navigation of educational systems, normative considerations about the purposes of education, and interpretive understandings of the nature of educational experience and the transformative potential of education. PhD students work closely with faculty to generate dissertation topics that seek to add something new to existing scholarship in their chosen area of study within the field of education. Graduates of the program have the knowledge, critical understandings and interpretive skills to analyze and assess educational theories, policies and practices and to lead and promote innovative practices in a range of educational settings and social contexts. Recent graduates have embarked on new careers or been promoted in their existing institutions in governmental agencies, K-12 school systems, institutions of higher education and nongovernmental organizations, both nationally and internationally.
