Program Learning Outcomes

Graduates of this program will be able to:

1. Acquire and employ new lenses of study into subjects and experiences of "women" in contexts wherein such a designation matters.
2. Employ new approaches to knowledge, new strategies of engagement with peers, new methods of research and new techniques of critical analysis and appraisal.
3. Converse — and become conversant — in critiquing various studies, histories and perspectives through the lens of feminism.
4. Interrogate and be able to continually interrogate the expansive lexicon of sexed-and-gendered terms to which "woman" as a question gave rise.
5. Master the "thought and theory" of the field (e.g., sex, gender, feminism, intersectionality, identity politics, sisterhood, womanism).
6. Understand and be able to engage feminist praxis: the techniques and tools of navigating difference, seeking transversals and attaining and optimizing goals and skills to meet demands of activism.

Full Description

The Women's Studies minor offers both diversity and depth of coursework, ranging from feminist humor to feminism as serious theory and world-making practice. Students can immerse themselves in experiential learning via internships and capstone work.

Through inventive classes, facilitated engagement in discussion and carefully crafted opportunities for guided independent work, the minor embraces a logic of study initiated from many start-points; grounded in cores of feminist thought, substance and practice; enriched by multiple disciplines and capped by challenge.

The minor’s curriculum aims to satisfy students’ desire for both a solid foundation in women’s studies and a taste of the diverse, complex and often contentious field. The minor’s aim is to deliver coursework that speaks to students’ very specific scholarly interests as well as to their passions and persuasions, both personal and political.
